Workshops 1

Saturday, 21st April, morning

Party structures in comparison – What can we learn? & Introduction PES – network of the European Left (speaker: Michelle Rauschkolb, YES Vice, Jusos)

We want to get to know our mutual structures and talk about similarities as well as differences between our parties. What can we learn from each other? Which methods and practices have proved successful? In reference to the recent problems of the social democracy we will search for innovative techniques for our renewal and also examine our intercommunication at the European level. How do SPE and YES work? Our referent will be Michelle Rauschkolb. Michelle is the Juso-Vice President for YES and comes from the Juso state association of Rhineland-Palatinate.

How do we deal with nationalist movements? Reasons and counter-strategies (speaker: Sophie Pornschlegel, Progressives Zentrum)

For quite some time far-right forces of different ideological backgrounds have been working to subvert democracy and rule of law in the Western World. Unfortunately in Western Europe they have been more successful in the past year than at any other time since World War II. Together with Sophie Pornschlegel of the Progressives Zentrum (Progressive Center) think tank, we will investigate core tenets of these forces, particularly their contempt of liberal governance, their virulent anti muslim ideology and their instrumentalization of current issues of social justice. Thus, we will help you to develop and implement strategies to oppose these threats.

Social inequality across member states: European Trade Unions (speaker: Markus Herrera Torrez, ETUC)

For many centuries, work has been regulated nationally. By now, the EU is gaining more and more influence in this issue. Together with Markus Herrera Torrez, referent at the European Trade Union Confederation in Brussels, we want to examine and analyze the social injustice in Europe as well as elaborate solution approaches. Additionally, we want to take a look into the European Trade Union Cooperation.

Institutions of the EU under the microscope (speaker: Moritz Deutschmann)

The European Union in its parts and its working style is the main topic of this workshop. Our aim is to speak and discuss about a structure of the European Union that shows transparency and is close to its citizens. Moritz Deutschmann, who has been working for a long time for a member of the European Parliament, will discuss with us a “new” structure of the European Union

All workshops are taking place concurrently at the same venue.

Workshops 2

Saturday, 21st April, afternoon

Brexit – what does it mean for the European Union? (speaker: Dr. Jens Zimmermann)

The Brexit is one of the biggest crises of the European Union as it exists today. Consequences and yet even results of necessary negotiations are not in sight. A lot of questions still remain unanswered.

The aim of the workshop is to pin-point the actual problems while speaking about possible solutions. Another main topic is the future relation between Europe and the UK. That's why we will speak about possible options that are currently on the table. Take for example a trade agreement close to CETA or the norwegian model. We are honored to have Jens Zimmermann as a speaker, who is very knowledgeable in terms of the political scene in the United Kingdom. Jens is a member of the German Parliament and a member of the German-British Parliamentary Group and in the committee of this group.

To be or not to be - what constitutes a European identity and where are we heading? (speaker: Prof. Dr. Sandra Seubert)

This workshop addresses the question of whether the existence of a European identity is essential for the development of Europe. The participants will discuss the roots, challenges and perspectives of a European identity. Keynote speaker will be Prof. Dr. Sandra Seubert, who is currently professor of political science at the Goethe University in Frankfurt am Main.

European banking regulation in the post-financial crisis era (speakers: Dr. Cordelius Iligmann, Bijan Kaffenberger)

Following the World Financial Crisis of 2007/2008 banking regulation within the European Union and its member states was reinforced and reorganized. Among other measures a european bank recovery framework was introduced to end too big to fail expectations. The workshop wants to shed light on these developments and will discuss the measures taken to strengthen the resistance of the European banking sector against future crises as well as the achievement of a harmonized European banking supervision.

Dr. Cordelius Iligmann works as head of Department for Economic Affairs in the Thuringian Ministry for Economic Affairs, Science and Digital Society. Prior to this position he worked for the European Central Bank as well as for the German Federal Financial Supervisory Authority BaFin. He holds a Ph.D. from the University of Münster and published various papers with regard to the financial crisis and European banking regulation.

Labour market prospects for young people in Europe (speaker: NN)

The high unemployment rate among youth, especially in southern Europe, is a frequently discussed topic. We want to examine possible counter-measures, for example a „Youth Guarantee“. Additionally, we want to take a look at the perspectives for young people at the employment market and discuss national differences. We have requested a referent of the German Federation of Trade Unions with an European focus. It is recommended to take part in the workshop for European Trade-Union cooperation but it is not mandatory.

All workshops are taking place concurrently at the same venue.
